In the Eyes of the Young

The Circus Came to Canyon

(Last week, Cole Brothers Circus came to Canyon. In order that those who were unable to attend could see the circus with unjaded eyes, we asked Martha Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack T. Hughes, and Rebecca Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright, to go to the circus and tell us what they saw and enjoyed. These are their stories.—The Editor)

By REBECCA WRIGHT, 9

I, Rebecca Wright, went to the circus April 12 at the National Guard Armory grounds in Canyon to see the many sights that the circus has.

My father, Charles Wright, took me and my friend Martha Hughes. Martha and I had free tickets from Bill Cherry, editor of the Canyon News, to write stories about the circus.

I saw a camel with two humps. I had heard that camels only had one hump. I saw a 36-inch stallion which was found in Grand Canyon.

I saw a rhinoceros and its skin looked like it was all coated with mud.

There were three elephants in the circus and all three were females. They seemed sort of dainty to me, even as big as they were. I had never noticed that elephants' trunks are divided into two parts the way a person's nose is divided.

The funniest thing at the circus was the group of clowns. I saw a clown trying to do a trapeze

Cole Wild Animal Circus came to Canyon last week for two shows at the National Guard Armory grounds east of town.

Bill Cherry, editor of the Canyon News, asked Becky Wright and me to write a story for him. He gave us two tickets to the circus. This is my report on what I liked most.

I liked lots of the animals. The rhinoceros was gray and sluggish. Its skin was two inches thick. It weighed two tons.

There was a snake who weighed 256 pounds. It had a black-red tongue. Vicki Daniel and Vicki Spence gave me this information.

The leopard was pretty and restless. There was a father lion, yellowish-brown in color, who was very restless. There was a lioness the same color. She was pacing up and down the cage too.

One of the most graceful animals I saw was

Senior Day Starts Graduation Activities at West Texas State

A senior day assembly Thursday will kick off graduation activities for 315 West Texas State College students who are candidates for degrees.

The traditional reception for the graduates by Dr. James P. Cornette at the President's residence is scheduled for 8-10 p.m. Saturday.

Culminating activities will be commencement exercises at 5 p.m. Sunday with Dr. William R. Ross, president of Colorado State College, the speaker. They will be held in the West Texas Fieldhouse.

Dr. Walter H. Juniper, college dean, has announced that all candidates for degrees will rehearse for the spring convocation at 10 a.m. Saturday in the fieldhouse.

Of the 315 students seeking degrees, 279 are candidates for various Bachelor's degrees, and 36 are after Master's degrees. Should most of the candidates earn degrees, another record graduating class will be registered.

Dr. Ross recently was appointed chairman of the commission on colleges and universities of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondard Schools, and he has served on various committees of the association as chairman.

Cemetery Board Votes 'No Curbs'

Continuing the policy of beautifying Dreamland Cemetery, the Dreamland Cemetery Association board of directors has voted to allow no more curbs around grave spaces.

The decision was made to facilitate maintenance and cut the cost of keeping the cemetery free of weeds and tall grass. Those spaces with curbs must be maintained by hand rather than machinery, and the hand work requires considerable more time.

In addition to the decision, the board is asking permission from space owners who have erected curbing to allow the curbing to be removed. The board president, Mrs. Lonnie Byars, has written monument companies in the area advising them of the new decision.

The association has also invited all residents of the area to visit the cemetery and see the work that has been done in changing it from a volunteer-maintained area to perpetual care.

Vet Announces Special Hours

In connection with the anti-rabies campaign in Amarillo and with the city commission, Dr. J. L. Markham will offer rabies shots at reduced rates during special hours next week.

The shots will be offered from 6 to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday at his clinic. The charge will be $2 instead of the regular $3. Dr. Markham said the regular rates would apply to dogs brought at different hours.

The veterinarian said the campaign is to obtain early protection against rabies. It was conducted about the same time last year, and some 165 dogs were inoculated.

'Poppy' Sale Set Saturday Morning

Veterans of Foreign Wars, assisted by the Auxiliary, will hold their annual "Poppy" sale Saturday from 8:30 a. m. until 12:30.

A booth will be set up in front of the Olympic Theatre.

Proceeds from the sale will go to benefit disabled and needy veterans, their widows and orphans.

Effigy Hanging

Children were fascinated by Mr. Litterbug, hung in effigy by the Canyon Jaycees at the start of Cleanup Week. The dummy disappeared the first night after it was hung.

Stevens Trial Starts Monday

The bribe conspiracy trial of Randall County Judge Roy Joe Stevens began in Wichita Falls Monday morning, with the first day devoted to selection of a jury.

On Tuesday, testimony began with Hubert Heard and Donald Heard telling how Hubert was approached by Edwin Dale West, also indicted for the conspiracy with Stevens.

Potter County District Attorney Wayne Bagley was the next witness and gave testimony about his relationship with Judge Stevens. Armond James S. Chandonett was the fourth witness of the day, and was a prime witness for the state.

A complete story of the trial in Wichita Falls, written especially for The Canyon News by John and Patricia Masterman, will be printed next week.

Chamber Gives Cleanup Prizes

Winners of the cash awards for the most improvement during the Cleanup Week in Canyon have been announced by the Chamber of Commerce.

In first place, winning $50, is the C. F. Allen home at 908 Eighth Avenue. Second place, $25, was won by Luther Hagard, 210 Fourth Avenue. Third place, $15, was won by Carmen Hernandez, Santa Fe House No. 1.

Townspeople are invited to inspect those yards.

Babe Ruth League Slates Tryouts

Tryouts are scheduled Thursday and Friday between 5:15 and 7 p.m. at Babe Ruth Park for positions on four teams.

Eligible for the tryouts are boys born between Sept. 1, 1943, and Aug. 31, 1946, who are not already members of the Babe Ruth League.

Volunteer assistance is needed to help Babe Ruth officials install crossarms on the poles at Babe Ruth League Park. The crossarms, which are arriving today and tomorrow, will be put up Saturday at 1 p. m. at the park.

Candidates must attend both tryouts.

Players must report to the player agents, Bob Bellah or Bill Sternenberg, who will check in the candidates. Registration for the program is being made through the principals' offices in Canyon Junior High and Canyon High School.

Observing the tryouts will be the team coaches, who are Chet Reynolds, White Sox; Jim Boyd, Pirates; D. L. Hunt, Giants, and Don Paris, Cardinals.

Following Friday's tryout, a player auction will be held to assign 15 players to each team.

The Babe Ruth program will begin about June 8 and will last about nine weeks, with each team playing two games a week. Games will be played at 7:30 on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, the same night that Little League games will be played.

Paul Funston is head of the volunteer umpires for the league. More voluneters are needed to officiate at the games. Anyone willing to spend an evening a week in the project is urged to get in touch with Funston or George de Schweinitz, OL5-2572.

Notaries Public Must File Oaths

All persons now holding notary public commissions will be reappointed, according to Secretary of State Zollie Steakley. But all must re-qualify by filing a new oath and bond with the county clerk between June 1 and June 10.

Requests for re-appointment should not be sent to Austin, Steakley said. The appointments will be made automatically to those who file the oath and bond with the county clerk.

Troop 66 Takes Another Contest

Boy Scout Troop 66 won honors at another camporee last weekend, in competition with troops in the Baden-Powell District in Amarillo.

Four of the five patrols in Troop 6 got "A-Patrol" ratings, along with two patrols from Amarillo troops. To obtain the rating, the patrols had to make 680 out of 800 points in 13 Scout skill contests.

The Skunk Patrol, led by Elo Myers and Tim White, won top honors in the camporee, with 769 points out of 800. The troop average was 712 points. The nearest troop to Troop 66 was Troop 24 with 617 points.

Taking part in the camporee were 40 patrols from 20 troops. The Canyon troop was invited to take part in the camporee because neither of the other two troops in the Randall District are not active in that field.

Bible Chair Names New Directorship

Gordon Downing of Abilene will assume the directorship of the Church of Christ Bible Chair June 2 to fill the position Douglass A. Rohre is leaving to accept the ministry of a church in San Angelo.

Downing, present minister of the Northside Church of Christ in Abilene, will teach during the first summer session at the Bible Chair.

He received his B.A. from Abilene Christian College and his M.A. at Hardin-Simmons University.

Downing is married and has two children, both attending ACC.

The present director, Rohre, will accept a position as minister of the Colorado and Jackson Street Church of Christ in San Angelo.

Rohre came to WT two years ago. Before that time he was a minister for three years and a student minister for five years.

He received both his B.S. and his M.A. degrees from ACC.

Trouble Seen in Not Appearing

A growing number of citizens are courting trouble with the courts by failing to appear after giving their written promises to appear on a traffic violation, Department of Public Safety officials have announced.

Maj. R. A. Crowder, commander of Region No. 5, issued a reminder to motorists that a charge of "Failure to Appear" can be filled in addition to the original traffic charge in the event the defendant fails to show up in court.

The motorist may be found guilty of a misdemeanor on the charge and be fined up to $200 for failing to appear even though he is found not guilty of the original traffic violation.

The major said the problem is serious, in that serving of warrants on motorists who fail to answer a traffic summons requires many man hours away from necessary patrol duties of traffic supervision.

In an effort to combat this, Crowder said that he has issued instructions to all personnel under his command to advise those persons arrested that they may have a charge of this nature against them if they fail to appear in the proper court within the designated time.

When the defentant realizes that one additional charge was brought about by his failure to keep his promise that he made when he signed the traffic ticket, he may think twice before disregarding the next summons, the major said.

Mrs. Roy Wreath of Woodward, Okla., spent last week with her daughter and her family, the Arvin Tripletts.

Jaycees Install New Officers

New officers of the Canyon Jaycees were installed last Thursday in a western-style dinner in the VFW Hall.

Doug Rittenberry was installed as president. Other officers are Foy Langford, vice president, Wayne Wirt, state director, Don Singleton, secretary, Richard Pruett, treasurer, and Jerry LaGrone, John Carlile and Crawford Ruthart, directors.

The new officers were installed by F. A. Records of Phillips, state vice president. The outgoing president is Crawford Ruthart. Ruthart succeeded John Smotherman as president the first of the month. Smotherman resigned to move to Lubbock.

Jaycees and their guests wore western clothes to the dinner, and the hall was decorated western style. The VFW donated the use of the hall. Following the dinner and installation, there was a dance with music by the Spiders, a college string band.

Master of ceremonies for the installation was LaGrone.

White Deer Agents Give Papers to Museum

Two former Englishmen with a love for the Plains of Texas have given the record of 631,000 acres of rich Panhandle land to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

M. K. Brown and C. P. Buckler of Pampa, both members of the historical society and its board of directors, arranged the transfer of the records of the White Deer Land Company and its predecessor, Francklyn Land and Cattle Company, to the museum. The acquisition of the papers was announced at the annual meeting of the society.

"Without doubt one of the finest collections we have ever received," said C. Boone McClure, executive secretary of the society and director of the museum. "Along with the XIT and JA Ranch papers, these papers will make the museum archives the outstanding such collection in the entire region. Mr. Brown and Mr. Buckler have for years been active in support of the museum and this contribution exemplifies that very active interest."

The records cover a span of 67 years—from shortly after the first cattle herds came to the Panhandle to 1950 when the company was dissolved. The donors, Brown and Buckler, were with the company from just after the turn of the century until its dissolution. They both live in Pampa and conduct business under the name of White Deer Lands.

The White Deer was a strange outfit for the early-day cattle country. Owning nearly 1,000 sections in Gray, Carson, Hutchinson and Roberts counties, the company did not own any cattle or operate a ranch.

Owned by a group of Englishmen, the White Deer Land Company got around the Texas Alien Law just as many English-owned Panhandle ranches did—through a law firm in the U. S. The members of the law firm, called the "legal end," held title to the land while the English owners of the company put up the money that bought it. The White Deer's "legal end" was in New York, and the lawyer who held title was Frederic de P. Foster.

The Francklyn Land and Cattle Company began operation in 1883, owning the Panhandle acreage and running cattle on it. The company issued bonds to finance operation, and the majority purchaser of those bonds was Lord Rosebery—with close to a million dollars loaned through the bonds.

In 1886, the Francklyn outfit became bankrupt, and Lord Rosebery foreclosed. It took another $1,450,000 to complete the foreclosure and obtain the land for the White Deers.

The White Deer company leased its pastures to other cattlemen in the Panhandle, and had dealings with many of the famous names of the area — Masterson, Spur Ranch, N Bar N and others.

Lord Rosebery, a wealthy gentleman engaged in a number of activities, owned a bank in London—and in 1902 sent the bank manager, Andrew Kingsmill, to the Panhandle to look at the White Deer property. George Tyng was resident manager at the time.

Kingsmill returned to England, and talked with his nephew, M. K. Brown, about the future of this country. Brown had been in the Boer War in Africa, and was preparing to return to Africa to make his fortune.

Instead, upon the advice of his uncle, Brown came to the Panhandle of Texas, arriving on April 28, 1903. His plans were to learn the cattle business and he was going to the J. A. Ranch. But his plans were changed and he stayed with Tyng and the White Deer.

Shortly after Brown's arrival, Tyng was succeeded as manager by T. D. Hobart. Hobart and the New York lawyer, Foster, went to England in 1904 for conferences and Buckler came into the White Deer picture.

While in England, Hobart had dinner with a member law firm which handled the Lord Rosebery interests. The lawyer told Hobart of a nephew, Morris Ward, and the nephew's friend, C. P. Buckler. Hobart said the two could come to the White Deer and he would find something for them to do.

Buckler and Ward arrived in Pampa on March 22, 1905. Ward stayed a while and left for Mexico, but Buckler stayed on with the White Deer.

He went to work for $18 a month and board at outdoor jobs such as building fence and painting. Soon, Hobart found that Buckler could operate a typewriter and take shorthand, so Buckler was transferred to the office.

Brown at the time was an assistant to Hobart, and found that among his duties was the job of attending cattle conventions to become acquainted with cattlemen who might lease portions of the White Deer lands.

In 1924, Hobart resigned from the White Deer company as agent and attorney in fact, and Brown and Buckler were appointed joint agents and attorneys in fact. In 1935 Brown retired and Buckler was appointed to take charge.

The White Deer company was interested in leasing in the early days, but began selling off the holdings in the years after Brown and Buckler arrived in the United States. The farming land around Pampa was sold to settlers while the rougher breaks was sold to ranchers.

In the 1920's, when oil was discovered in the west part of Gray County, the company retained half the mineral rights when land was sold. When the company was dissolved in 1949, the mineral rights were distributed to the shareholders. Among the shareholders by 1949 were Brown and Buckler.

Brown said the White Deer Land Company was interested in building the economy of the Panhandle. When land was sold, the company was interested in seeing that the purchaser made a living.

"It was a wonderful thing," he said. "We were given a free hand."

He cited an instance of the drouth of 1910, when many wheat farmers were unable to buy even seed wheat.

The company sent $100,000 to be deposited in the Pampa bank with the stipulation that it be loaned out to wheat farmers for buying seed wheat. "The bank lost none of these loans and we eventually got our money back," Brown said.

In all the sales of land, there were only two foreclosures, Brown said. They were both foreclosures of "bad neighbors," he said, and the people of the area "were glad to be rid of them." He said the company took back some land when the purchaser insisted, but tried to dissuade them.

The papers donated by Brown and Buckler are being reserved at the present time for the use of Dr. L. F. Sheffy, who is writing the history of the Francklyn Land and Cattle Company. Dr. Sheffy wrote a history of the life of T. D. Hobart, and his new volume will cover earlier years of the company.

Brown is the oldest living former mayor of Pampa, having served as the second mayor of the town. He and Buckler are trustees of the Fannie Lovett estate, and along with the late Dr. W. Purviance, the third trustee, supervised the erection of the Lovett Library in Pampa, a library in McLean and a community center in Lefors.

One of the projects the estate, through the two men, is the planned construction of a nurses home for Highland General Hospital in Pampa.

Buckler has served as trustee and president of the Pampa school board—for a total of 16 years—and resigned from the board to serve as chairman of the draft board in Gray County for six years.

He is a charter member of the Pampa Rotary Club, serving as

The Next Step

(The following editorial is from the Moore County News. — The Editor)

An attractively wrapped, not so plainly marked, package of federal aid has been rejected by the Dumas Independent School District Board of Trustees. For this action we offer our cheers of approval.

The board, composed principally of farmers, has seen the proposition of federal aid and control spread like malignant cancer. To a man, they expressed dislike for the very principal of governmental help.

So, locally, we now have registered a protest against the very principal of federal aid. The question then arises: "Where do we go from here?"

The answer is comparatively simple. If Americans actually controlling one's every action —— agencies and governments on the local levels must take it upon themselves to provide services and facilities which are needed by an expanding nation. On top of that, our representatives in Washington must realize that Americans still have a spark of independence remaining and they do not expect to be provided with "cradle to the grave" security.

Dumas' school board obviously realized its responsibility when members noted that a rejection of federal aid for the purchase of certain equipment did not mean that such equipment should not be provided. It only means that local funds would be pressed into action to provide for the students.

Proponents of federal aid — and they do exist — might ask, "What difference does it make, after all, it all comes from tax money?" The difference is simply this: It is a fact that locally collected and locally distributed tax money can be more wisely and prudently spent than funds funneled down from a source many miles and thoughts away. Then, too, if we use our own funds, we make the rules. Ask anyone that has received federal funds. They quickly will tell you that federal funds always mean federal rules and regulations, written by officials who often know or care little about local situations and conditions.

The second barrier to be thrown up against the all-powerful Washington bureaucracy is the voice of the people.

Joe Sneed, board president, very wisely pointed out that the best time to reject federal aid is when a bill is before Congress.

Now is that time. A $4 billion-plus package of federal aid to education cleared a House committee on Thursday. Its sponsors admit it faces a rugged road and a possible presidental veto. But if we honestly oppose this new attempt at forcing Washington "help" on our previously independent schools, the time to speak is now. Let Rep. Walter Rogers or Sens. Lyndon Johnson and Ralph Yarborough know that last year's election returns were not a blank check from the people to spend this country into socialism and bankruptcy.

The important fact is that NOW is the time. A judicially ignorant and common sense-shy Supreme Court already hacking away at the U. S. Constitution. So-called "liberals" are trying to stretch thetentacles of Washington into every phase of our life under the guise of "something for nothing." If we do not act today, we may lose the freedom to protest tomorrow.

Charters Mailed

Sometime this week, eligible voters in Canyon will receive their personal copy of the proposed Home Rule Charter for Canyon.

The charter is quite lengthy, and a quick look may dismay many voters. But there's a month before the election is set, and that's plenty of time to read the charter.

We feel that voters will have ample chance to inform themselves before election day, if they will take the opportunity. Each voter will have a copy to study. The Chamber of Commerce will have a mass meeting before the election to help explain provisions of the charter.

The proposed switch from general law to home rule is an important move for Canyon. If it is not made now, it will still have to be made sometime in the future. It is much too hard for a growing city to operate under general law, and the switch now will clear the road for orderly development of Canyon.

Take advantage of this opportunity to find out ahead of time what you are voting about.

We Wonder

In bulletin after bulletin, we have seen quoted a figure that says Texas ranks 32nd among the states in the amount of money it spends each year for the education of each public school pupil.

We have a question about this. Does this figure represent only what the state government puts in the kitty, or does it include local expenditures, too?

That brings another question to mind, too. If the ranking depends only on state participation, what are the figures for the other states based on? And if other states' figures are on state participation only, how much local participation is there in the other states?

And that brings up even another question. What sort of economy is practiced in other states to insure that the most education is received for each dollar spent?

And, anyway, what difference should it make to us what other states are doing or not doing? If we are doing a good job, we shouldn't worry that someone else is doing a good job, too.

Just wondering, that's all.

What Our Neighbors Say . . .

Scissor Snippings

Ernest Joiner in the Ralls Banner: What would happen if the Supreme Court suddenly ruled that the television show, "Gunsmoke," could no longer be viewed by millions of Americans?

What would be the public reaction if the court suspended the annual Oklahoma-Texas football classic? If all churches were ordered closed? If bridge players were ordered to jail?

One can only shudder at the reprisals the public might take against any man or group of men, regardless of official station, who invaded the rights and privileges of American citizens by denying them these pleasures!

But there is no outcry against the Supreme Court's assault upon the basic liberties of Americans as guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

In all Texas, only one newspaper, The Amarillo Globe-News, has exhibited any degree of patriotism by angrily lashing out at the tribunal which has just overthrown one of the American prized possessions —— the right NOT to be subjected to search and seizure in his own home without a warrant based on probable cause.

Freedom-loving Americans once filled a harbor with tea and whipped the British Empire with broomsticks and pitchforks for less arrogance and oppressive action than the court's nullification of the 14th Amendment.

On May 4 the court ruled that a health inspector may, without a warrant, invade a private home and search it. From this day forward, the lowest inspector (who is often a police official besides) may enter and search your home simply by knocking on the door. He may be looking for rats, or dust, or germs, or inadequate ventilation. He may search your home for improper lighting, abnormal temperatures or for dirty dishes in the sink. He may inquire into your plumbing, laundry facilitits or bathing habits.

Worse, he may enter for a malicious and illegal purpose, using his new found "search-without-warrant" status as a cover-up.

And much worse, a policeman is also charged with certain duties affecting public health. As such, he will at some date in the future assume the role of a health official in order to invade private dwellings for any purpose of his or his superior's choosing. His visit may come during your absence from home, or it may come at 4 a.m. You may be pulled from your bed and subjected to search and seizure, and so may members of your family.

One would think that only in Amarillo are Americans who prize their freedoms enough to at least get angry about it.

The Supreme Court need not get away with this. If Americans will write their Congressmen, demanding congressional action in restoring the 14th Amendment to its original meaning and purpose, the court ruling may be nullified through legislation.

Will you spend 10 minutes today to write Sen. Lyndon Johnson, Sen. Ralph arborough and Rep. George Mahon, just to know you'll be free men tomorrow?

(Apparently Editor Joiner's typewriter slipped and wrote 14th Amendment when he meant the 4th Amendment. It's easy for a typewriter to get confused. The integration decision was based on the 14th Amendment, while the health decision was in opposition to the 4th. — The Editor)

Ben Ezzell in the Canadian Record: We're in total agreement with Amarillo editor Wes Izzard about the over-emphasis on weather by the radio and television stations in our area. These constant quacks of alarm with the approach of every thunderstorm within a three-state area are turning our citizenship into abunch of weather-beaten neurotics.

Time was when the approach of clouds on the horizon meant no more than the pleasant prospect of a spring shower and relief from summer heat . . . but nowadays no self-respecting cloud can rear its head without being thoroughly analyzed by radar and thoroughly publicized by radio and TV.

Every cloud may have a silver lining, as the old saying goes, but thank heaven every cloud does not contain a potential tornado . . . and we wish the weather experts would go on with the analyzing but quit thinking out loud on every available network while they're doing it.

World peace wouldn't seem so remote if we could manage to have a little more neighborhood peace.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By BOYCE HOUSE

A block of native stone on top of which has been crudely chiseled just two words, "Sam Bass," marks the grave of Texas' most renowned bandit. It was quite a few years ago that I visited the spot, with J. H. Kavanaugh who, for a long time was editor of the Round Rock Leader, as my guide.

In a corner of the old cemetery, under the shade of a large tree, side by side, are the graves of the "Robin Hood of Texas" and his "right bower," Sebe Barnes. A small stone with no inscription marks Barnes' grave.

There have been two previous monuments to Bass' resting place; one was entirely destroyed by souvenir-hunters and, of the second, only the base is left. The original monument was erected by Sam's sister. The wording, besides the name and dates of birth and death, read, "A brave man reposes in death here. Why was he not true?"

A debate has gone on almost from the day of Bass' death as to who killed him in the Round Rock battle. One group maintains the fatal shot was fired by Ranger Ware; another group contends that the distinction belongs to Ranger Harrell.

Mr. Kavanaugh took no sides in the debate. However, he did relate that, years before, a retired Ranger named Jackson ran a dining hall in Lometa. Jackson and Chris Connor were in the Ranger service together; in fact, they usually worked as a pair. Connor was one of the first Rangers to reach Round Rock when the "tip" came from a traitor in Bass' gang that the Round Rock bank was to be held up. Connor, Ware and Harrell came to the town together to take part in the plan to trap the outlaws.

The injudicious attempt of an officer to arrest Bass for carrying a pistol—(the officer had been advised by Major Jones of the Rangers to avoid precipitating matters)—set off the battle, prematurely. The officer paid with his life—the only man Bass killed during his career, which included five train robberies and a number of stagecoach holdups.

When the shooting broke out, Rangers and citizens joined in. Barnes was killed and Bass was mortally wounded. Frank Jackson of Bass' gang helped his disabled chief into the saddle, and, at the same time, single-handed fought back a dozen or so adversaries. The two rode out of town, the outlaw continuing to fire.

Next day, Bass was captured. He had been left by his reluctant companion who had offered to remain and fight to the last. But Sam told him, "I'm done for; you go on." The captured robber was taken back to Round Rock where he lingered in great pain for two days. His mind was lucid and he talked freely but would not "tell off" on his pals. He died on his 27th birthday.

Now back to what Jackson, the retired Ranger (not to be confused with the other Jackson who was Bass' associate), told Editor Kavanaugh. Connor decided to resign as a Ranger and, on his last day in the service, Jackson asked him who killed Sam Bass. Connor (who had been in as good position to know as anyone) said, in substance:

"There were 50 shots fired and it could have been any one of them."

So it looks as though the mystery will never be solved.

Washington Report

Back To Washington

By Representative Walter Rogers
18th Congressional District

It was nice to be home for several days last week. I only wish I could have stayed longer and visited more, but chances for doing that were vetoed by the press of matters pending in Committees and before the House. So, it was back to Washington Wednesday night. By catching a late plane in Amarillo, making connection with a late plane in Dallas, I was able to get back to Washington by 5:30 a. m., EDT.

This enabled me to get a few winks of sleep before reporting for work and voting on the measure pending in the House of Representatives. There must be some kind of change going on in the world, because staying up all night and working all the following day is much more strenuous now than it was 10 years ago. Perhaps "fall-out" may have something to do with it.

STOCKPILING

A very able and alert Congressman from Houston, Texas, is doing some probing in one government department that could turn up pay dirt. I refer to the Honorable Albert Thomas, who is Chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee.

In a recent investigation, it was revealed that the General Services Administration had a stockpile of strategic materials worth some 8 billions of dollars.

These stockpiles have been justified in the past on the grounds of "national defense." They were supposed to include highly strategic materials, including strategic minerals and metals. Because of the "defense" brand, the whole matter was highly hush, hush.

A few years ago, as Chairman of the Mines and Mining Subcommittee of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, I moved for a complete investigation of these activities concerning minerals and metals; the reason being that many mining operations in this country were faced with bankruptcy because of the high cost of production here, as compared with the low cost of production in many foreign countries.

Efforts to stabilize the domestic minerals operations were being thwarted on the argument that it was not fair to subsidize mining activities if the product could be purchased for a lesser price from foreign sources. This argument is excellent from an economic standpoint, looking only at the dollars and cents involved on a limited number of transactions.

However, a look at the entire picture would reveal that this country needs and must have a strong minerals industry, not only for the purposes of national defense, but for the proper utilization and exploration of our own natural resources, and to support our position in world trade. If we could be assured of a continuing peace and amicable trade relations with other countries, certainly it would be sensible to buy strategic raw materials at the cheapest price on the world market.

But when these materials are indispensable in the maintenance of a proper national defense, the danger of a foreign source of supply being cut off, in the event of war, standing by itself, alone, justifies the proper development of sources of such strategic raw materials in this country.

Some thought that the building of an adequate stockpile would dipense with the necessity of developing our own resources of these materials. To me, it is much more important to develop an industry in your own country to provide the needs of the people, than to permit a segment of the economy to die on the vine simply because the material can be purchased from foreign countries.

The actual cost in either case will be about the same in the long run. However, in the first instance this country has a living industry that will provide much employment. If a country is going to follow the stockpiling theory, the stockpiles should not get too big, because it is all coming out of the taxpayers' pockets.

In the case at hand, it occurred to some of the Members of Congress several years ago that some of the people clamoring for more imports of these strategic materials might have some interest in the foreign sources. It was this phase of the program that I wanted to investigate.

My proposal did not meet with the approval of the GSA or the State Department. It was my feeling that if the American taxpayer was being required to supply the money for this vast stockpile, much of which came from foreign sources, certainly it was only fair that the source or origin of the strategic material be made available.

I was advised by the GSA that they could give me the country of origin, as well as the name of the broker through which the material was acquired, but could not give me the names of the owners of the mines where the material originated.

They also told me the information concerning these operations was classified and must be given to me under those circumstances. Some suspected that the owners of the source of these materials in foreign countries might be some folks in our own backyard.

If such is the case, the veil of secrecy should be lifted. Eight billion dollars is entirely too much money to be tied up in such a stockpile without the taxpayers knowing who got the money.

Chevy pickup pulls through "bottomless" pastures to keep stock fed!
At the Hall Bros. Dairy Farm, Montgomery, Ala., they say this 4-wheel drive Chevy will go anywhere to keep stock fed—even through hub-deep muck that makes it a fight all the way. And yet after a full year of it—no mechanical trouble of any kind!
That Chevy pickup may not win any beauty awards (till it's cleaned up). But it's sure walking off with the top prize for dependability. And that's standard Chevrolet procedure. Put a Chevy truck to work and it keeps on working until you say quit. Not before.
We aren't claiming that every Chevrolet truck is turning out to be a miracle-worker and averaging 100,000 miles before a valve job. (Even though some are going 150,000!) You're sure to find, however, that you can't buy more truck dependability at any price. And that's borne out by the fact that more truck owners put their faith, and their payloads, in Chevrolets than in any other make.
Take your load and schedule figures to your Chevrolet dealer. He'll specify the best way to handle both and save in the bargain.
No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck! CHEVROLET
Now's the time—see your local authorized Chevrolet dealer for a real truck buy!

Farmers and the farm program are often criticized by the consuming public for the high cost of living. Few people know that the price support program actually works both ways in stabilizing prices. They assure the public that prices for farm products will not go unreasonably high.

For example: Commodity Credit Corporation has authority to sell any stored commodities at 105% of the support price. When the price of any commodity jumps above this rate then a plentiful supply is placed on the market. If wheat is supported at 75% of parity, then the public is assured that they will not have to pay more than 80% of parity for the raw product.

This is 20% less than an even break for the farmer since parity is tied to the actual cost of producing the wheat.

If there was no storage of excess crops, then in a year when a short crop is produced the prices could go considerably higher than 100% of parity and as a result the consuming public would have to pay more. In effect the "surplus," as they are called, work as a direct benefit to the consuming public.

a white deer. There was a little stallion, 36 inches high. It is as high as it will get. It was found in Grand Canyon.

We saw kittens roaming around the circus. They must have been the mascots. They played right on and around the cages of the big animals and the animals did not seem to mind.

There was also a llama, white and very plump. It isn't every day that you see a llama.

There was a camel. My class in school is studying about Australia so this will come in very handy. It was very high and its mouth looked like an old man.

A black bear was kind of cute. We saw a baboon. There was a black chimpanzee and it was cute, also. The chimpanzee reached his big old black hand out to take peanuts people gave him. Mike Hickman gave me lots of this information.

Three elephants were big and rough. They were all females but the circus people called them bulls. Their ears would make very good fans.

There were pony rides for the children.

Now for the big top.

First there was a clown. He came out quite a few times with all this music and bowed and ran back and came out again. Then there was a monkey that did tricks on a pony. He wore red clothes. Four ponies did tricks; one of them bowed. The same monkey pushed a buggy and then pulled a wagon. He ate food in a high chair. It was the cutest thing. He sat there just like a baby.

A dog did tricks on horseback and that's all. Three girls did tricks on high swings. They were very good. Some of their tricks made everybody gasp. Some women did tricks on horses. The horses sat down and the women stood on them. A horse played dead.

Two women and one man from Uruguay did tricks on a pole sticking in the air. One held the pole up and the others twirled and balanced themselves on the top of the pole.

An elephant did tricks with a girl. The girl was very brave. The elephant danced on a stool, bowed, lay down, sat. The girl rode on its trunk like in a high chair.

There were dogs in all three rings at one time so it was pretty hard to get the story of what was going on. Some dogs did tricks. They jumped through hoops, seesawed, hopped, walked tight-ropes, walked thin sticks, rolled barrels, followed lady while standing up, and a big dog pushed a little dog in a buggy and that was cute. One dog danced in a long, fluffy dress. Some of them played leap-frog. Some others took a ferriswheel ride, slid down a slide, climbed up a ladder and jumped into their master's arms.

Just then we got cotton candy and could not write for awhile.

Clowns did some funny tricks. One of them jumped over a table and the table fell over and he slid down it. It was funny. Women did tricks on ropes hanging from the ceiling. This was very exciting because some of them twirled around on the ropes so fast that it was amazing.

A clown did tricks with a cemera. He said he was going to take a picture of some people in the audience, but when he flipped the camera, it went off with a big bang. He said he thought it was broken.

Three elephants did tricks with a girl. They sat, played London Bridge, and played Bear Goes Over the Mountain. One elephant would lie down and the others would step over him. They danced, lay down, and formed a sort of pyramid.

The whole show lasted about 1 hour and 46 minutes. I had a very good time, thanks to Bill Cherry, and to Mr. Charles Wright, who took us.

Variety Ring Meets In K. E. Hines Home

Mrs. K. E. Hines entertained the Variety Ring last Wednesday with a surprise breakfast.

Guests were Joyce Barker, Beth Dutton of La Junta, Colo., Mrs. Lester Hogue of Boise City, Okla., and members present were Mrs. George Barker, Mrs. Levi Cole, Mrs. Leslie Neal, Mrs. Earl Burtz, Mrs. Fred Marshall, Mrs. P. L. Pitt and Mrs. J. P. Hammons.

act. The first thing, he had a terrible time trying to get on the trapeze. He would get a ladder but of course the ladder would not stay still. Finally, a girl came and held the ladder while he climbed up.

When the clown finally got up there, he fell off.

The scariest act was at the last when the elephants came thundering around the ring and I was sitting on the front row and they were so big and everything I felt almost that they were going to eat me up.

I enjoyed the trapeze act since my neighbors and I had quite a few shows on the swing set. It was almost as if I might be able to do those things.

I saw my friend Emma Lee Hicks there. She seemed to be going back and getting endless numbers of cotton candy.

Vicki Spence and Vicki Daniel did not want to go to see the rhinoceros, but they went to see the Devil Snake and interviewed him for me. They said he was 120 feet long but he didn't look as scarey as some people say he does.

They had a four-legged chicken in one of the side shows but Daddy had seen one before so we did not go in there. He had seen this kind of chicken before and said it was just a misshapen figure.

I did notice that there were wires lying around all over the circus grounds and when an actor or someone would step on one sparks would fly everywhere. A little boy stepped on one and when sparks flew he stood, petrified. It seemed to me that the circus people should have been more careful with the wires.

We saw a lion and a lioness which made me think of whether the lioness was going to have a baby or not, but she seemed just as worried as the father lion was. They were pacing back and forth in their cage. Daddy said they might have been worrying about their income-tax return.

I saw elephants play London Bridge.

They sold some candy for advertisement. It was a completely brand new type of candy and in each box they had a package, a prize of some sort. Some of the boys, when they pulled a necklace from their box of candy, were embarrassed. Dr. C. R. Nester was surprised when he pulled a pair of nylon hose out of his box of candy.

Near the lions' cage, some cats were playing and eating their supper. It was easy to see that the big lions and the little cats belonged to the same family.

There was a ventriloquist who had a dummy named Wally and Wally loved girls and was always interrupting. Wally didn't know much about what he called gee-a-graphy.

A horse pranced around the ring with bells on his toes while a lady rode the horse side-saddle. I never had seen a lady ride side-saddle before, and on a side-saddle it looked especially difficult for her to stay on while the horse danced, still with bells on his toes.

In general, one half of my mind thought some of the things they did in the circus were pretty foolish, but the other half of my mind thought some of the acts were as good as if they were in Ringling Brothers. It was a lot of fun, and I imagine it's the best time I'll have all this month.

Adams To Return To United States

Jimmy A. Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Adams of Canyon, will return to San Diego, Calif., on June 13, after a six-month cruise with the Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific.

Adams, torpedoman third class, is serving aboard the destroyer USS Hollister.

The Hollister, part of Destroyer Division 112, participated in Operation "Sea Demon" in the South China Sea with representative navies of the South East Asia Treaty Organization. During her cruise of 40,000 miles, the Hollister visited Japan, the Philippines, Okinawa, Hong Kong and Singapore. Enroute to San Diego, the Hollister will arrive via a trip to Australia making various ports of call.

Mrs. Emma Bowers of Nashville, Tenn., is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Marvel Kirbie.

Shower Honors Gwendolyn Kelso

Gwendolyn Kelso, bride-elect of Lyall J. Milligan, of Concord, N. H., was honored with a personal shower Friday. About 35 attended or sent gifts.

Milk glass service was used on the serving table, centered with an arrangement using white and pink carnations, the honoree's chosen colors. A white cloth was used.

Patricia Hardaway registered guests.

Hotesses were Joyce Barker, Rita Grabbe, Patricia Hardaway and Gayle Welch.

Kid Day Big For Senior Class

Kid Day for the seniors is one of the important days before graduation. Last Friday the faculty and lower classmen played baby-sitter to the senior class of 1958-59.

The highlight of a day of childish pranks and fights was an assembly in the afternoon. The "little kids" staged a fashion show in which Jeanne Whinnery and Ronny Huyck were declared the best dressed.

Jeanne's bright blue dress was covered with a white organdy pinafore. A ribbon of blue in her hair, a short, full skirt and large puffed sleeves on her dress helped to create an illusion of a little doll.

Ronny wore a white shirt and short blue pants. His wide brimmed white hat was trimmed with a black ribbon with black streamers down the back. He wore long white sox.

Following the fashion parade the group presented a skit, "A Usual Day With Exceptional Students" with Professor Sondra Hines conducting the class. It was here that everyone learned the four kinds of clauses—noun, adverbial, adjective and Santa.

Little Thomas McClure taught the assembly how to spell Constantinople. It was too bad that Dwayne Ledbetter didn't study his lesson for the next day.

Corrections: Sophomore class favorites are Phillip Waters and Sally Jennings. Judy Taylor, not Janet, will serve as cheerleader next year.

The seniors were guests at a Hobo party sponsored by the WSCS of the First Methodist Church Friday evening. Hobo Camp was the Harry Hungate farm.

Explorer Scouts of Troop 66 visited Amarillo Air Force Base Saturday and Sunday during the observance of Armed Forces Day. Mr. Hinger, Mr. Harris and Mr. White, along with a group of the boys, were piloted over Canyon and Palo Duro Canyon in one of the world's largest helicopter Sunday.

Some $35,000 worth of property is being offered for sale by Pantex Ordnance Plant.

Items to be sold are no longer needed, according to an announcement from the plant. The things for sale include used vehicles, machine tools, plumbing supplies, foil tape, miscellaneous hardware, and office, cafeteria and trash disposal equipment.

The property will be sold by lots to the highest qualifying bidder. The items may be inspected from today through June 16. Prospective bidders should contact J. La-Marca from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday through Friday to inspect the property and obtain bid forms.

Invitations to bid describe the items to be sold and contain complete instructions for submitting sealed bids, which will be publicly opened at 2 p. m. June 16. Awards will be made to the highest responsible bidder in line with the terms of the invitation.

Observe Rural Mail Box Week

The annual mail box improvement program will be observed on rural routes during this week, according to Marion Higdon, Canyon Postmaster.

Patrons on rural routes are encouraged to provide approved boxes, erected and maintained for safe and easy accessibility, presenting a neat appearance and affording protection for mail. Boxes that are improperly erected or are in unserviceable condition retard delivery of mail and expose it to the weather, Higdon said.

Names of box owners should be inscribed on the side of the box, visible to the carrier as he approaches. The names may be on the doors of the boxes if the boxes are grouped. The box number may also be inscribed.

The spendthrift soon finds that he can't spend more than he makes and get away with it.

Sidelights
FRO
yo
tate CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

enators and Representatives have only a brief breather veen regular and special ses- ıs of the Legislature. Gov. :e Daniel announced that law- cers would convene again, the t of next week.

ig question around the Capitol is how many special sessions be needed to solve the state's problem.

ince the lawmakers failed, dur- their 120-day regular session, rase the $65,000,000 deficit and ınce the budget for 1960-61, chore will be number one on r agenda. And most observers think it will take at least two, and maybe more, 30-day special sessions to iron things out.

Only matters specifically offered by the Governor may be considered durnig a special session of the Legislature, and all legislation started during the regular session must start over, practically from scratch. Revenue-raising proposals will have to be introduced again in the House, heard in committee, etc., before they can go to the Senate.

"OPEN SHOP" TEACHING

Any college graduate could teach in Texas — at least for a year or two — under a House-passed bill.

Bill would grant a teacher's certificate good for one year to any bachelor's degree holder, whether he had teacher training or not. Certificates could be renewed twice. After that, the applicant would have to take 12 semester hours of teacher education.

Miss Maud Isaacks of El Paso, herself a teacher for many years, sponsored the bill. Professional educators were divided on the merits of the plan.

Some said it would increase qualified personnel; others, that it would attract to Texas the misfits and ne'er-do-wells from "all the freshwater colleges" in the nation.

PLOUGHED UNDER

In the final days of a session, there usually isn't time to revive a bill that gets pushed aside. Among the bills whose setbacks were interpreted as death for this year are these:

Milk Import Regulations, sponsored by Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo. House supporters could not muster the two-thirds majority to take the bill out of order. Proponents said the restriction on milk brought across the state line was needed for health reasons. Opponents called it a trade barrier that would raise the price of milk.

Broadening the Common Purchaser Oil Law, by Sen. Hazlewood. Senate refused to take up the bill which would require pipelines to provide connections to new fields or transport the oil to market by truck.

Ban on Sunday Auto Sales, by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas. It passed Senate, but House refused to take it up.

Ban on Nudist Camps, by Rep. James Turman of Gober. Senate passed, but House refused to call it out of committee. Committee had referred it to the Attorney General who said it would be legal.

HIGHWAY ZONING

Both houses moved quickly toward passage of a bill to protect smaller roads from heavier truck loads.

Governor Daniel asked for such regulation when he signed the bill to increase permitted truck loads and gives same authority to County Commissioners for county roads.

INSURANCE QUESTION MARKS

Whether the State Board of Insurance should operate full-time or part-time was an issue expected to carry over into the special session.

House made its preference clear by putting full-time salaries in the House appropriations bill and by passing a bill specifically providing for a full-time Board.

Senate version of the appropriation bill provided for what would aamount to about one-third time salaries ($5,000 a year) for Insurance Board members. Many senators opposed a full-time Board in addition to a full-time Commissioner when the Department was reorganized two years ago. Since then, they have been angered because the Board retained William A. Harrison as Commissioner after the Senate had disapproved him.

Since no conference committee was appointed to adjust differences between the two houses' appropriation bills, it was obvious the insurance hassle could not be resolved in the regular session.

TOURIST BILL PASSES

The much discussed and battered bill to permit the state of Texas to advertise its tourist advantages finally was approved by both houses of the Legislature before adjournament of the regular session.

As passed, the bill puts into effect the constitutional amendment approved by a close margin by the voters at the election last November. It differs in one important respect, however. It does not provide that industries shall match state funds — which was the sales pitch that was used to effect passage of the amendment by Texas voters.

Designated to handle the program is the Governor, the Chairman of the State Highway Commission, and the Chairman of the Texas Industrial Commission.

SHORT SNORTS

House passed a resolution opposing federal regulation of wages to imported farm labor. It was sent to the U. S. Dept. of Labor and to Congress. Some called it the "get your cotton picking hands off our cotton picking hands" measure.

Senate approved the House-passed bill to allow for abolishing the office of county school superintendent in counties not needing one. But it was amended so it applied to only two counties, Young and Parker.

Number of persons receiving unemployment payments in Texas is one-third fewer this month than in the recession spring of a year ago. Texas Employment Commission reported 58,410 jobless now compared to 90,946 in May, 1958.

It was a rough session for a presiding officer, but House Speaker Waggoner Carr had "his day." Many colleagues paid tribute to Carr on Speaker's Day, and Carr and his family received numerous gifts.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

The Supervisors of the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District wish to express their appreciation to the local churches and others who observed Soil Stewardship Week. Some of the local ministers and the board of supervisors went on a tour to observe conservation practices being carried out by local farmers; this tour was being held before Soil Stewardship Week began.

Mr. E. W. Glenn, who lives east of Canyon, has recently established a wildlife area consisting of Russian Olive and Desert Willow. This area is being watered to produce maximum growth of the trees. Within a few years, Glenn thinks that the quail and other wildlife will increase in his farm. Food supply for the birds will be established.

Now that the range grasses are growing, start thinking about how much of the grass you intend to leave on the ground. Approximately 50% of the current year's growth should not be grazed, but left ungrazed to insure you a better crop next year. When the grass is overgrazed, the root system starts dying out and the roots are closer to the top of the ground.

Deferred grazing of grasses will help increase the stand and tend to reseed bare spots, thus increasing the amount of forage produced. Deferred grazing should be done during the growing season of the grass you want to increase.

Dr. Bright Speaks To Pampa Group

Dr. Houston Bright, professor of music at West Texas State College, was the main speaker at the annual dinner of the Treble Clef Club of Pampa recently. The dinner was held in the City Hall, primarily for the purpose of honoring Dr. Bright as an outstanding Texas composer.

The subject of his address was "Today's Composer and His Problems." Featured on the program were performances of two of his piano compositions, "Ballad from Superstition Mountain," and "Ironic Dance," played by Mrs. Homer Martin of Pampa. Mrs. Martin is the former Patsy Stovall, and exstudent of the WTSC department of music.

Dr. Bright regularly began addressing study clubs and similar groups on the problems of modern composition some three or four years ago.

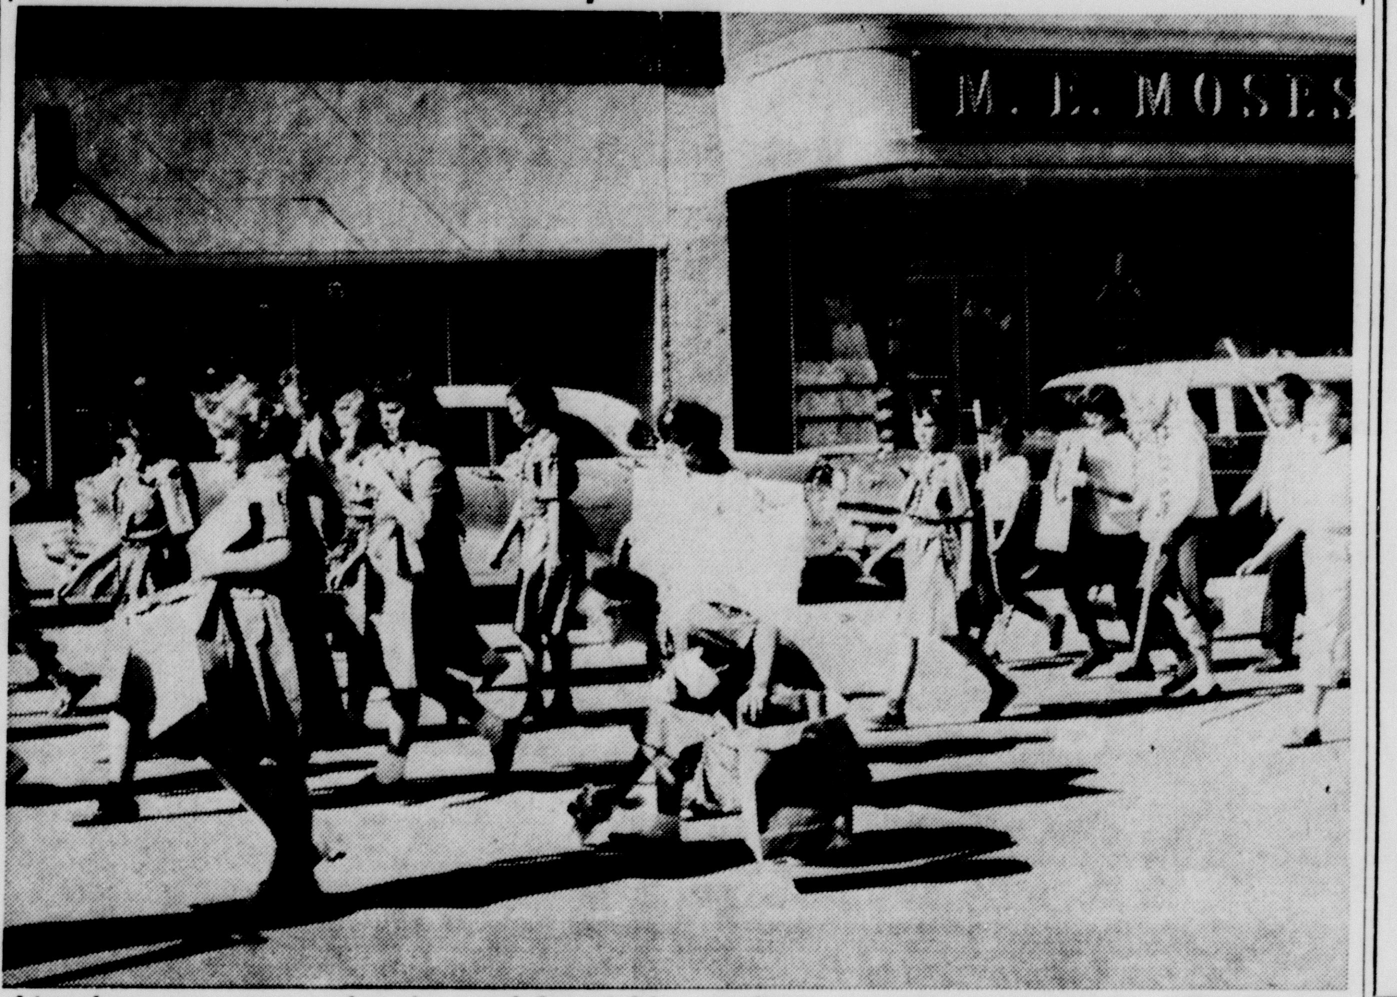
Cleanup Week Parade



Litterbags are supposed to be used for picking up litter, parade or no parade. Girl Scouts marching in the Cleanup Week Parade carried litterbags and picked up trash as they went, as this Girl Scout shows.

LIPSTICK LOGIC

BY LOUISE ALLEN

Meeting an old-time friend suddenly is like opening a window on yesterday. As vividly as the slice-of-life drama on the television screen, forgotten stories are reenacted in memory's eye.

The doorbell rings and you answer: "Do you remember Jack Smith?" the stranger standing there says. A long look pierces the baldness and pounds to bring recognition. "Of course, Jack. Come in." Then begins the parade of shared acquaintances:

"And where is Fred now? I just knew he'd be a famous artist. Why didn't he, d'ya suppose?" "You mean that little girl went to Hollywood! The last one I'd have thought of for that." And with each name comes a picture of the girl who was, the man or woman who is, and the one who might have been.

School teachers are especially blest with a rich mental portfolio. Youngsters, now grown up, look with special fondness on this person whose influence was luckily timed. For the teacher can share, in the dry light of office or classroom, what no parent can ever get near because of the emotional fog. And as the one-time student obeys the impulse to stop and say hello — "I was just passing through" — his visit cuts through present worries and harassments, through last week's blunders and irritations, to an earlier self that was young and gay, confident that all would be well if we wished it hard enough.

Yes, day-by-day contacts are really living. But for a visit with our yesterdays, give us the long-ago acquaintance seen only once in a while.
